the Health Question.

Dr. R. F. Gray, superintendent of the board of health, is having some very important work done There is going to be a wild waking up among those who permit pest holes, slimy sinks and other disease breeders to exist upon their premises. There should be no compromise with people who maintain a nui sance upon their premises -- and the man that cannot live in the city without one should move out to the country where he would endanger the lives of less people.

Build More Houses.

Quite a number of good citizens could have been located in Winston this year had there been any place they could have lived in until they could have bought and built. We have been informed that there was one man here who would agree to enter into a contract to locate 1,000 people here in the next twelve months if he can have houses to put them in until they can build. If you want to enhance the value of your property increase your popula-

There is something scathing-in tact there is something scorehing in Mr. Webster's attack on Colonel Fairbrother, which appeared in last week's issue of the Reidsville Weekly. After Colonel Fairbrother has been so merciless in his abuse of certain members of the State press upon the most trivial provocations he cannot afford to tamely submit to Mr. Webster's remarks without retort or defense unless he is entirely indifferent of the public estimate that must inevitably follow such a course. It won't do to bully one man and beg another. No it won't.

A Friendly Hand After Profession. Mr. Norman remarked in his Sunday's sermon that it was often the heart to God, yet he needed the touch of a friendly hand, the admonition of a friendly voice to move hin to this resolution. We might add here and we think it pertinent to do so, he still needs that friendly hand to guide him, that friendly voice to admonish him after he has become a member of the church. It is so often the case that after a young man joins the church resolved to lead a better life he is thrown in contact with old associates and starts down grade again. He has not the strength within him to stop and longs for the touch of a friendly hand; but the friendly hand don't come; the friendly voice is heard but it is in the distance making re marks about how the fellow is going to the bad. This is why so many men fail in leading christian lives and turn back to the flesh pots of Egypt. They need help to enable them to stand.

Lutheran Church Organized.

Another religious denomination for Winston.

Per announcement the Lutherans met in the Reform Club Hall Sunday morning and oganized themselves into a congregation.

The organization was perfected after the sermon which was delivered in an able manner by Rev. W. A. Lutz of Enochville. It was a practical and appropriate discourse and listened to by a large audience. At the conclusion of this service Mr. Lutz proceeded to the organization. Forty-three names were soon enrolled, after which the following church officers were elected. ELDERS.—David A. Swink, J. H. Dingelhoef, W. A. Tavis and L. M. Haithcox.

DEACONS. - W. A. Ridenhour, Chas. Shoaf, F. A. Bissinger and F. B. Efird. TRUSTEES .- J. A. Efird and D. A.

The Elders and Deacons were elected for a term of two years, while the Trustees were chosen for life.

A Fire Ordinance.

There should be an ordinance re stricting or prohibiting persons from placing or storing inflamable material near dwellings or business houses within the city limits exposed. Se that by the accidental dropping of a fires might be set that would endanger thousands of dollars worth of of property. It is unfair to the in-dividual whose property is thus en-dangered, and it is unfair to the Insurance Company that is carring the risks. We know of places that need attention and due notice have been given of them.

Fifty-one Accessions to the Church Fifty-one people joined the Cente-nary M. E. church Sunday-six by letter and forty-five by profession of faith. Pastor W. C. Norman remarked, after reading the list of names over, that it was the largest number of people he had ever seen join the church at any one time be-fore. Mr. Norman has been holding a protracted meeting in the Gentenary church for the past two weeks, and every night during that time the church has been filled with people-in fact no such congregations have been seen in the church since the great Evangelist Pearson. was here. There has been no excitement, the meetings have gone on in a smooth and even sort of way, "bat" the undercurrent of sincerity has been strong and with its tide went out the hearts of the great masses. There was a touch of earnestness that pervaded the entire assemblage. Mr. Norman is to be congratulated upon the result of his labors; it's a rich harvest of souls he gathers into the church and tells plainer than any other language could of the deep piety and sincerity of this man of

We might mention in connection with this that this is Mr. Norman's last year with us, and it is now nearing the close of this last year, and as the time draws near for his departure there is a feeling of profound regret that prevails—not only his congregation—but this entire community over his leaving. He is now closing his fourth year with us which is the limit permitted by the N. C. Methodist Conference—a matter C. Methodist Conference—a matter so much to be regretted in a case of this kind. Mr. Norman has grown nearer and nearer our people each succeeding year until he seems a member of each household, helping us bear our burdens, sharing our sorrows and rejoicing at our prosperity and happiness. We can only wish that his lot may be cast among a people who will love and respect him as ours have done. We are a cordial court house. When the time comes men and to vote on the bonds they will be agreed to give the Expesition five quite sure Mr. Norman will ask for days at one cent a mile.

FORSYTH TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

It Opened Monday Morning Under Fa vorable Conditions

The Forsyth County Teachers Institute was opened by Professors Allighted match, cigar or cigarette in it, derman and McIver Monday morning with forty teachers present.

Professsor Alderman addressed the teachers, at length, detailing in general the program for the week and speaking of the fundamental principals that should be adopted in the organization, government and teaching of public schools. He laid great stress upon the teacher—the necessi ty of affability and courtesy toward their pupils and of the importance arrested here last week upon a var-rant from the Sheriff of Randolph He instructed in the organization and government of a school-of devotional exercises at the opening and of the manner to become a disciplithe theft; that he traded his horse to narian of influence, at the same time loved and respected by the pupils. No remarks could have been more appro-priate, more highly essential to the occasion or more beneficent to the teachers.

Supt. Butner arranged the roll and trade, he took the mule back to the mans house, and, finding no one at home, he took his horse from the pasture and left the mule in its place.

Prof. W. A. Blair, at the request of Prof. Alderman, addressed the teachers, extending them a cordial welcome to the city, inviting them on behalf of Superintendent CitySchools to visit the North and West Winston Schools while here and observe the the mode of teaching The Institute met again this afternoon at 2:30 at which exercises in the common school branches were dealt with in order. There is nothing, perhaps, more instructive and more beneficent to county school teachers, than these Institutes. They add dignity to the profession and stimulates the teachers to rene wed zeal in their work, giving ecognition of his virtures should be them at the same time better ideas and better notions as to their labor and the efforts they should employ in making their schools a success.
